BUSINESS VALUATION

Serena Morones is an independent damages expert. Top commercial and IP litigators turn to her again and again to resolve high-stakes disputes through expert testimony or settlement.

As a forensic CPA who specializes in damages analysis, Serena knows how to tell a powerful story with numbers. She demonstrates an extensive accounting background and a talent for explaining complex concepts. She puts the financial pieces of the puzzle together to reveal a clear, well-thought-out conclusion and a solid position that stands up to the rigors of expert testimony and litigation.

Serena leads Morones Analytics, a firm of financially savvy experts who work together to develop sound opinions. She has been engaged in over a thousand cases and has built a strong reputation. Serena has served as a pivotal expert in several landmark cases and has testified about patent infringement damages on behalf of large companies.

Prior to specializing in forensic accounting, Serena began honing her accounting skills over 30 years ago at Price Waterhouse (now PwC) as an auditor. She also served as a controller at both public and private companies. Having learned the hows and whys of accounting and implementing accounting systems, Serena brings that valuable perspective to her work as an expert.

Serena's other passion and talent is sports photography. For her, it's an art and another way of telling stories visually while also giving back to the community. You'll find her at college sporting events around the country and you can see her photos featured by award-winning sports columnist www.johncanzano.com.
